Ben Johnson
Client Advisor

Client advisor Ben Johnson joined Laird Norton Tyee in 2002. He brings more than 15 years of wealth management expertise to his work with clients, including resource allocation to meet goals and cash flow analysis. Ben has a history of working with trusts and extensive experience dealing with the complexities of different types of wealth whether it is held by the first generation or the fifth generation. As an advisor, he takes responsibility for making sure clients progress toward their goals, providing solutions and bringing in experts as needed. Ben strives to bring real-life meaning to the decisions his clients are making.

Previously, Ben was a client manager at Allison Spielman Advisors, a financial advisory firm, where he provided investment research, portfolio management and financial planning services. Prior to that he was with Safeco Mutual Funds, where he managed a department that served financial intermediaries and retirement plan participants.

Ben earned a degree in finance with a second major in economics from North Park University in Illinois. He is a Certified Financial Planner™ professional, a member of the Financial Planning Association, and he sits on the East King County Estate Planning Council.
